

Recommendations for Facebook Group Pages

With the growing usage of social media, Facebook is becoming a growing trend among oncology nurses. Facebook is a social network of users who share interests and activities with each other. This social networking site provides the ability for chapters to create group pages. Creating a group page in Facebook will give the opportunity for chapter members to informally communicate with each other which will create an environment of knowledge sharing and networking.

Chapters are welcome to create a group page within Facebook. Group pages are socially interactive pages for chapter members to discuss information as well as add pictures from past events.

ONS recommendations

ONS asks that you place links on your group page to the ONS fan page at <http://www.facebook.com/OncologyNursing> and to the ONS Twitter account at <http://twitter.com/OncologyNursing>

In return, ONS will display your Chapter group page on the ONS fan page links section and send out a “tweet” about your page via Twitter. Please e-mail Sean Pieszak at spieszak@ons.org with your group page’s URL.

Note: Facebook is not a service provided by ONS who does not provide technical support.
